Saving in Death
A Synthetic Life Cell

OLD IN old age is magnificent occasionally, not often. Man straight as an arrow dominating wherever he has power.

[illegible] walking up the hill to little inn at Gastein in Austrian Tyrol, an orderly with him walking ahead of him, on way to tell the Austrian and German emperors what to say to [illegible] possessed power amazed in Pope Leo's transfigured face when he celebrated Mass in St. Peter's.

Paderewski, 71 years old, appeared yesterday afternoon as he walked across the stage in Carnegie Hall to play for the Young People's Symphony-Philharmonic concert.

Single human being in the great audience kindled from the floor to the remotest gallery, rose as he entered. He was there not to entertain, but to command and impress.

He started with the power and control of youth and the authority of age. Musical critics will tell you how and what he played. The important thing is that his power of personality plays upon the imaginations of men and rules them. Goethes glueck der erdenkenswert sei nur die persoenlichkit," says Goethe.

If any young musician is discouraged, let him remember Paderewski's experience. Intending to study the violin, he consulted a famous German teacher. The latter said to him: "You will never be a musician so you had better play the piano."

IN OLD DAYS, a man with $1,000,000 was a "millionaire." That modest pittance no longer means anything. A "millionaire," in the new financial language, is one who has $10,000,000 or more of yearly income.

In 1928, 511 Americans told Uncle Sam they had incomes of $1,000,000 or more. Several have $10,000,000 a year, and at least two or three have more. They represent the beginning of our billionaire class. There are probably six, certainly four, men in the United States worth a billion.

And that harms nobody, of course, if the money is used wisely and not used to corrupt politics.

A billion, or ten billions, in the hands of one man might be the most possible thing for a people that does not know enough to use its national property for its own good.

The great power in Niagara is a good thing for industry, because it is used for industry. So with great accumulations of money, turned in the right direction.

Hoover Announces Rail Merger Pact

EASTERN LINES JOIN PLAN TO CONSOLIDATE

President Makes Known Consummation of Details for Giant Combine.

FOUR SYSTEMS PROPOSED

Lines Passing Through Marion Included; Seen as Aid to Business.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Dec. 30—Agreement of eastern railroads on a consolidation into four independent systems was announced today by President Hoover.

The President had asked the railroad chiefs to map out the consolidation.

Only one minor point remains to be worked out in the gigantic consolidation scheme. That has been left to arbitration.

The railroads are the Pennsylvania, the New York Central, the Baltimore & Ohio and the Nickel Plate system.

The Wabash-Seaboard system, provided for under the interstate commerce commission's plan issued last December, would be abandoned.

President Hoover understands the plan provides for the protection of employes and of local communities and fulfills the intent of congress as expressed in the transportation act of 1920.

The consolidation program must be submitted to the Interstate Commerce Commission for approval.

Benefits Expected

The President said he believed the plan will contribute to opportunities for employment in the present depression and also increase the stability of the railroads themselves.

He also expressed the belief that

STEEL CO. RELATIONS REMAIN UNCERTAIN

No Indication Given Concerning Possible Appeal in Merger Fight.

By The Associated Press

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Dec. 30—Future relations of the Bethlehem Steel corporation and the Youngstown Sheet & Tube company, restrained from merging yesterday by Common Pleas Judge David G. Jenkins, remained a matter of doubt today.

There was nothing to indicate whether Bethlehem and the heads of Sheet & Tube would appeal the decision, whether Bethlehem would renew consolidation negotiations on a new basis, or whether the merger was permanently halted.

Newton D. Baker, chief counsel for the pro-merger group, said their future course of action would not be determined until attorneys had studied the decision and met in conference, but he was unable to say when the conferences would take place.

Eugene G. Grace, president of Bethlehem declined to comment until his attorneys had a chance to consider the decision. James A. Campbell, chairman of Sheet & Tube, and Frank Purnell, president, likewise were silent.

TENNESSEE FEUD STIRS INDIANA

ATTEMPT RAID ON JAIL

Fugitives Reopen Warfare After 10-Year Period of Dormancy.

By United Press

SALEM, Ind., Dec. 30—This southern Indiana town and its vicinity retained today the appearance of a military encampment as posses of deputies and war veterans deployed over several townships in search of two fugitive feudist brothers.

The feudists, Dan and Alonzo Gibson, escaped last night from a trap which a posse led by Lieutenant John C. Weir of the state police set for them on the Jade Collins farm near the Kentucky border.

Wanted for Shooting

Dan and Alonzo were wanted for the shooting of Sheriff Milton Trinkle, Mrs. Trinkle, who is a deputy, and Marshal Elmer Girard during an attempt by them and two of their brothers to raid the Salem jail where their enemies, Cleas and John Spurlock, were imprisoned.

The Spurlock boys were charged with killing Patton Gibson, chief of the Gibson clan, which has waged war against the Spurlocks in the Tennessee hills for at least two decades.

Th ancient feud was brought here when one family moved to Salem and the other followed. It was dormant for almost 10 years, then suddenly was renewed after Patton Gibson paid a visit to his followers in Tennessee and returned to be quoted as saying he had "killed some more of them Spurlocks" while away.

Attempt Jail Raid

Old Patton was killed Dec. 14. The Spurlocks, fled but were arrested in Virginia and brought back. The Gibsons struck Saturday night without warning, but were unable to shoot their way to the Spurlocks' cells. One Gibson brother, Otis, was killed by town marshal Gerard after he had shot Gerard through the abdomen. Gerard's wound may prove fatal. Another of the raiding brothers, Gilfred, was captured Sunday, surrendering without resistance when assured that no Spurlocks were in the posse that surrounded his farmhouse.

Time About Up

(Will Rogers Special)

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Dec. 30—You just got two more days now patriots to sell your stock and charge it off on your income tax and then buy it back Friday.

Too bad the old farmer or salaried man hasn't got any out like that. We ought to have a stock exchange for land and houses and lots, so we could run 'em up and down (for no reason at all) like you can wheat and corn, and everything else.

Get up in the morning, look at the paper, see what your vacant lot is worth, sell it and charge it off, then buy it back.

Yours,

Will Rogers

Boys "Coast" Into Police Station in Safety Drive

AN impromptu "juvenile court" conducted by acting Police Chief Ira Shrock, before whom 20 boys were assembled this morning, was the outgrowth of an unusual step taken by the department yesterday to prevent coasting accidents here.

After a patrolman narrowly avoided running down a youngster, police began "arresting" every boy caught coasting in the street. Each lad was obliged to leave his sled at the station as bail, to secure his appearance before Chief Shrock this morning. Twenty sleds piled up at the station before the day ended.

After making each confess his guilt Chief Shrock gave a lecture on safety. "I know what it is to be young and I realize you boys must have your fun, but let's have it somewhere off the streets," he cautioned them.

The sleds were returned to the boys after each had promised to stay out of the streets.

The campaign is not over, however, Chief Shrock told the youngsters to warn their friends, and announced today that the safety campaign would extend throughout the coasting season.

Bank Employe Learns About Alarm System

Reports of a bank robbery here were broadcast throughout the city last night when a burglar alarm, recently installed at the National City Bank & Trust Co., accidentally was set off at 5 p. m. by one of the employes.

The Star office, police headquarters, the sheriff's office and the banks were flooded with calls after the alarm began ringing. A Cleveland newspaper last night called here to learn of the bank "robbery."

The alarm was released by an employe as the vault was being closed for the day. It is so arranged that it rings for 15 minutes before it can be stopped.

Meanwhile, a crowd had gathered around the building and a corps of policemen rushed to the scene armed heavily and prepared to give chase to the "robbers."

Before the rumor was definitely exploded last night several banks were reported to have been held up and robbed of amounts varying from $16,000 to $18,000.

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, Dec. 30—A jury of women, passing judgment on one of their own sex in a homicide case here for the first time in the history of Cook county, returned a verdict unfavorable to the woman.

Mrs. Viola Miller was ordered held to the grand jury yesterday for manslaughter by a coroner's jury of six women who investigated the death last Saturday of George Gleichaus, her cousin and suitor. Gleichaus was shot to death.

The announcement of the verdict came as a shock to women relatives and friends of Mrs. Miller. She maintained she did not know the weapon was loaded.

JOFFRE FIGHTS AGAINST DEATH

Physicians Amazed as French Warrior Rallies from Coma.

By The Associated Press

PARIS, Dec. 30—Marshal Joffre still lived today.

While medical science looked on amazed his stout heart beat on, although faintly, and postponed the eventual victory of death.

At 8:15 a. m., physicians attending the aged soldier issued a bulletin which said:

"The patient spent a calm night and did not again sink into coma. He was able to take some nourishment and to say a few words. Nevertheless his lungs are filling up and respiration remains irregular. The situation continues very grave."

Late yesterday the marshal lapsed into coma and his physicians believed that what before had been a matter of hours had become a matter of minutes.

Shortly before midnight they noticed a tinge of pink suffuse his waxy features. His labored breathing became more regular and his white head turned on his pillow.

The physicians and his brother Ferdinand, bent over him. "How do you feel, Marshal?" asked Dr. Leriche. Faintly came the answer. "Not so bad."

With indefinite precaution they supported him and managed to administer the nourishment which for hours they had not dared to attempt.

WATCHES LEG REMOVAL

Ether Refused by Joffre So He Could See Surgeons Work.

By The Associated Press

PARIS, Dec. 30—Marshal Joffre's leg was cut off while he looked calmly on, refusing to take ether and allowing use of only a local anaesthetic. He told his doctors. It was revealed today, that he wished to see what they were going to do to him. His illness developed last July, when Dr. Boulin was called.

"My left foot hurts me," doctor," he told the physician. Boulin considered that the case needed the attention of an expert so he called Dr. Leriche of Strasbourg.

In mid-December the marshal grew worse and on Dec. 19 during the night, the left leg was cut off at mid-thigh.

While the marshal lay at death's door the government announced his renomination to the supreme war council, of which he has been a member since 1920. He gave all of his time and efforts to this council since the war.

SECKEL FOUND GUILTY IN THEFT FROM WIDOW

Caledonia Man, 67, Convicted of Taking Life Savings of Neighbor Woman.

WILL ASK FOR NEW TRIAL

Common Pleas Court Room Filled to Capacity in Two-Day Trial Here.

Charles Seckel, 67, of Caledonia was found guilty of grand larceny by a jury in common pleas court late yesterday after a trial which lasted two days.

Seckel was accused of having stolen life savings of $3,000 from Mrs. Amanda Smith, 79-year-old widow neighbor, last Sept. 11 while Mrs. Smith was assisting Mrs. Seckel in canning. The jury found Seckel guilty of stealing $400, the amount of currency and coins allegedly found on his person when city police officers arrested him in connection with the theft.

To Seek New Trial

Attorneys for Seckel today announced their intention of filing a motion for a new trial. Until the motion is filed and acted upon by the court, Seckel will not be sentenced, it was said.

A new trial will be asked on grounds of error, it was intimated. Defense counsel claims that evidence submitted in the case is insufficient to convict their client.

Mrs. Smith had been in the habit of keeping the money in a satchel in the stairway of her home during the daytime, and at night she tucked the small satchel under her pillow, she told in court Saturday when the trial opened. When she returned to her home on the night of Sept. 11 after helping Mrs. Seckel with the canning, she discovered the bolt on the kitchen door broken and that burglars had stolen the satchel during her absence. The satchel was found in a nearby cemetery the next day with all of the money, except a roll of bills amounting to $100, missing.

Seckel Not on Stand

The currency found on Seckel when arrested was identified by Mrs. Smith as her money when she testified Saturday. The bills were of the old type which is larger than the present currency now in circulation.

Seckel did not take the stand in his defense yesterday as it was believed he might do.

The trial attracted the biggest crowd of any case heard in common pleas court here in more than a year. Yesterday all seats were filled and aisles were blocked with people, while an overflow crowd stood near the exits.

UNFORTUNATE HERE IN NEED OF STOVES

Family Welfare Society Makes Call To Help Needy Keep Warm.

With the week-end seeing the finish of the holiday baskets which made for a happy Christmas for hundreds of the city's unfortunate families, the office of the Family Welfare society located in the Y. M. C. A. building found a large number of applicants for help at its door throughout the day, Monday.

The cold weather is bringing many calls for stoves, both coal and gas, and according to a check in the office the demand is far in excess of the supply. Coal is available for all requests it is reported and will be supplied immediately upon the receipts of stoves. Actual suffering in some instances where there are children and aged people is felt in some cases a check in the office of Mrs. Jane Alexander shows.

Clothing, which is being kept pretty well in stock is continuously in demand particularly with the extreme temperature, and the call today is for men's underwear.

Sewing is being resumed in the work rooms and the work of easing for the city's needy is being carried on thoroughly and efficiently.

TRIO FAILS TO ESCAPE CHAIR

Appellate Judges Rule Mansfield Men Not Entitled to Mercy.

SECOND APPEAL PLANNED

Fred Massa, Earl Sites, Kenneth McCartney Must Die Week of Jan. 9.

Special To The Star

BUCYRUS, Dec. 30—Death verdicts returned against three Mansfield men in connection with the fatal shooting of Ralph Wilcox, 21, Galion filling station attendant, were upheld in a decision handed down today by the district court of appeals.

Fred Massa, originally scheduled to die Friday, received one more week to live as a result of the petition filed with the court of appeals. The date for his execution was set for Jan. 9.

Kenneth McCartney, under the ruling of the court, must walk to the electric chair Jan. 10 while the third member of the alleged bandit trio, Earl Sites, must die Jan. 12.

To Appeal Again

Only the state supreme court or the governor of Ohio can save the lives of the Mansfield trio. Attorneys today indicated they would appeal the cases to the supreme court and also apply for stays of execution.

The trio appealed the conviction on the grounds that the indictment charged them with the slaying on June 27 when Wilcox did not die of wounds until in August.

The appellate court ruled that the date of the death did not alter the fact of their guilt and that the fatal wounds had been inflicted on June 27 as charged in the indictment.

In closing their opinion filed today with Clerk of Courts Carl Young here, the judges of the district court said that "Massa, McCartney and Sites did not show Wilcox any mercy, and after a most careful reading of the records in these cases, we fail to find any evidence tending to show any reason why the jury should have rec-

Mr. Winters' present condition, which became noticeable Wednesday, was directly caused by shock and exposure to cold which he suffered at the time of the holdup when he was locked in a refrigerator at 38 degrees for almost an hour, members of his family said today.

A young woman, armed with a revolver, entered his grocery and meat market and after ordering steak, locked him in the refrigerator and took $20 from the cash drawer.

CORN LEADS IN GRAIN ADVANCE

Prices Gain After Wavering Start; Wheat Holds Steady.

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO Dec. 30—Led by corn all grains averaged higher early today after a wavering start. Word that the largest industrial consumer of corn would materially increase plant facilities to take care of prospective demand for corn sugar was the chief stimulating factor. Opening at ¼ cent decline to 1 cent advance, corn subsequently scored gains all around. Wheat started ¼@½ off to ¼ up and held steady.

Tending to give impetus to upturns in corn was the fact that arrivals here dwindled to only 47 cars against 184 a year ago. Receipts at primary centers also were much smaller than a year ago. Under such circumstances, together with announcements of extensive new corn products manufacturing plans, prevailing corn prices were characterized as on the bargain counter.

Corn advances were accompanied by a decided increase of buying orders for future deliveries but offerings were limited. Wheat and oats sympathized with corn strength. Wheat derived some firmness also from reports that the Canadian government would guarantee against loss the banks financing the Canadian growers' pool, and that the Ottawa parliament would be asked to vote large funds to assist purchases of seed grain and fodder.

Provisions underwent sharp declines owing to big deliveries on December lard contracts.

NEW TRIAL ASKED FOR MAJOR SHEPARD

Errors in Poison Murder Trial Alleged in Motions Filed Today.

By The Associated Press

TOPEKA, Dec. 30—Motions for a new trial and arrest of judgment were filed today in behalf of Maj. Charles A. Shepard, army medical corps officer convicted of the poison murder of his second wife at Fort Riley, Kas., in June, 1929.

Court attaches said the motions would be heard by Federal Judge Richard J. Hopkins, Feb. 2, the date for passing of sentence.

The trial jury assessed life imprisonment in returning its verdict at Kansas City, Kas., Dec. 22.

Major Shepard is at Liberty under $20,000 bond and meantime he has resumed his duties at Fitzsimmons general army hospital at Denver.

The defense set out that remarks prejudicial to Major Shepard had been made by Judge Hopkins during the trial and charged misconduct on the part of District Attorney Sardius M. Brewster in "misquoting the evidence" in his closing argument.

Judge Hopkins' ruling admitting testimony of Miss Clara Brown, Topeka nurse, and Sergeant J. E. Greese of Fort Riley, both of whom said Mrs. Shepard told them on her death bed she had been poisoned, was cited as an error.

Such alleged conversations, the motion contended, were not held in the presence of the defendant and were "wholly incompetent and improper."

Casey Blames Finance Committee for Galion Bank Failur

Market "Orgy" Started To Recoup Loss, Charge

Former President of Institution Says He Was Left To Hold "Bag" Upon Discovery of Illegal Transactions by National Examiners; Deposition Taken.

Special To The Star

BUCYRUS, Dec. 30—Blame for the failure of the Galion Citizens National bank was passed on to members of the finance committee yesterday by James B. Casey, former president, when he told his story in a deposition taken in common pleas court here.

Casey said members of the bank's committee determined to launch into stock market speculations in an effort to recoup losses from poor investments in Cleveland real estate. The investments were later wiped out in the market crash of 1929.

The Galion bank closed with a shortage of $223,000 last July 29 and Casey is awaiting trial in federal court at Cleveland on charges of misappropriating funds and falsifying records.

Casey's deposition was taken by attorneys for use in the $200,000 suit of Miss Mary Volk, former cashier of the bank, against the finance committee and directors. Miss Volk, in behalf of herself and other stockholders claimed that members of the two bank groups were responsible for the failure. It was taken over objections of attorneys for directors who held it was not being taken in good faith and that the local court did not have jurisdiction.

The suit of Miss Volk is being contested by A. E. Evenson, receiver. He charges she is guilty of irregularities. The court has under consideration a demurrer filed by the receiver to a recent action of Judge J. W. Wright in denying him an injunction against the cashier's suit.

Casey maintained that he was being made the goat of the failure by members of the finance committee and directors. When the heavy losses were disclosed last July by national bank examiners, Casey charged that every member of the finance committee gained and knowledge of the speculations and by him to hold the "bag."

Casey named Ernest Klopp, Galion auto dealer, and Frank Patterson, members of the finance committee, as charged guilty with being the instigators of the speculation orgy.

The plan was laid in June 1929, Casey said, when bank funds belonging to the bank to purchase stock.

In August 1929 Casey alleged, he reported the purchases to the finance committee when at that time decided the transactions were illegal and ordered that no mention of records be made of them.

Casey said H. H. Hartman, mayor of Galion and Herman Eichorn were the only two directors of the bank who knew nothing about the illegal transactions.

Annual Hospital Benefit Ball is Colorful Affair

ONE HUNDRED and fifty couples attended the third annual benefit ball sponsored by members of the Woman's Hospital board last night at Schwinger's. Although this organization is one of the youngest groups in the city, its work in financing projects at the Marion City hospital has been outstanding and the social affairs sponsored for some worthy cause have met with gratifying success and are being looked forward to with increasing interest each year.

Last night's affair, which was in charge of a committee headed by Mrs. Bennett Bindley as general chairman, was one of the most brilliant social events of the season and brought together a number of the younger set home from college and out-of-town guests.

Members of the decorating committee of which Mrs. Frank R. Mann was chairman chose to depart from the usual yuletide decorations this year and arranged a lovely effect in blue and white. The lights in the hall and annex were hung with white shades and white Christmas trees decorated with blue lights afforded a charming setting for the colorful gowns worn by the matrons and young women. Miniature Christmas trees separated the alcove from the main dance hall and here, beneath a white canopy was seated Richard's ensemble orchestra of New York, which played the dance program.

Tables for a buffet supper were arranged at one end of the annex and tables in the remainder of the room were placed for cards. Blue and white were the colors repeated in the decorations here, and the tables were centered with bowls of white roses and lighted with blue tapers. During the supper hour a group of dancers from the Oscar Conrad Dance studio entertained with dancing and Worth Cramer of Columbus was heard in a group of vocal numbers. Other entertaining features of the evening were the readings given by R. H. Tomlison of London, palmist, and the presentation of W. W. Durbin of Kenton, president of the International Brotherhood of Magicians. Mrs. Carl W. Sawyer and members of her committee were in charge of plans for the refreshments.

Mrs. Bindley as general chairman was assisted in arranging for the ball by Miss Geraldine Hord and Miss Emma O'Brien, ticket chairmen; Mrs. J. Malcolm Strelitz, entertainment chairman and her committee, Mrs. J. A. Dodd, Mrs. H. B. Hane, Mrs. J. H. Watters, Mrs. H. K. Mouser, Mrs. Edmund H. Keller, Mrs. Frank J. Longshore, and Mrs. Howard R. . . . Each year more millions check Colds 2 WAYS at once

Mother! The night coughs of children can usually be relieved by one application of Vicks. Just rub on freely and cover with warm flannel.

Millions more each year find there is nothing to equal the double attack of Vicks VapoRub in checking colds.

Rubbed on throat and chest, Vicks acts through the skin like a poultice or plaster, "drawing out" tightness and soreness. At the same time, its medicated vapors, released by the body heat, are breathed in direct to the air-passages.

Mothers especially appreciate Vicks because it avoids "dosing," which so often upsets children's delicate stomachs.

Adults, too, now prefer this modern method of checking colds. In fact, the whole trend of medical practice is away from needless "dosing."

CHAPTER
Jealousy

PERSPIRING ... his ghost leaves Max Klein facing the reporters with a group of salesgirls ... Getting up from the swivel chair he waddles across the room to ... the door. In an obsequious tone he asks the exact likeness of an actress ... the hands of the magician

... this new kick Bob Gray's daughter" Klein muttered Funny how things worked out Klein had loaned Gray the money for both his wife's confinements And the actor had never even tried to pay it back Klein took down the picture and carefully dusted off

"Hey Miss Kohn" he called through the door "Send this picture around to Wingate Tell him to shoot me a hundred gloss prints ... more right away We need 'em fast so that's going ... tomorrow

His secretary took the picture "What's the idea" she demanded Are you going to put on Hamlet and sign up for a real ghost?"

"Get your grandmother spotted Klein This guy's a whadaye call-it? Yeah! An ancestor Broad way discoveries gotta have fathers and mothers—the kind that'll make good advertising People don't remember that Bob Gray was a joke This Aileen kid is going to inherit the mantle of his fame"

"Baloney" Miss Kohn snapped coldly A noise in the outer office caused her to slam the door in alarm

Looking through the glass partition Klein saw an excited throng follow Jimmy and Aileen into the ante room "That boy's a wow" he beamed "Look at 'em—count 'em Baby' Every paper in town is taggin 'em—even the sob-sisters Lights' Camera' Whoopee!" He almost pushed Miss Kohn to the door opened it and thrust her out as he glared belligerently at the waiting group

"What the devil" he exploded "Whadaye think this is a hatting race" Shut up Get out Imbeciles No pictures Miss Kohn I will see no photographers at all I ... a word say Klein slammed the door and stood behind it shaking with silent laughter You had to handle these birds just right or they'll think there was something fishy about the whole story

Aileen Chief Brand and Jimmy ... as he and Aileen entered the inner office Didn't I tell you it would happen like a little miracle? That fall and tumble of his off was just the touch it needed

Now But Say you got a hell of a lot of nerve

That will be all right said Gray The guy I dragged isn't going to show up He knows he ... upstaged

He was never at all surprised

I never gave a damn to spot to ... and let me walk on him—just to get a fitting climax

But the fact that the cops his name was John B Stearncourt He's one of the biggest advertising men

But you can't do that to a guy I soaked He was ... I help it Jimmy asked ... the guy a phoney name"

Stearncourt will be wild-eyed" Klein said uneasily 'Maybe he's ... to sing and all these reporters ... at"

"Sure said Jimmy "That's why they're here I figured the old bird would raise a howl It makes a better story"

As he spoke there was a commotion just outside the door It flew open and Edna Vellamy strode in with flashing eyes They were large and dark and furious, and ignoring the others presence she focused them on Klein

"Do you think I'm going to stand for this" She shrieked at him Why you fool you've made me a laughing stock with this cheap publicity' Every paper in town will publish her picture in the morning She flashed a glance of hatred in Aileen's direction "I don't know how you're going to stop them but you've got to keep it out Am I the star of this show or not"

From on the blotter Klein rested his forehead on his palms until Edna should finish her tirade He had been through this many times

"Do you hear me" Miss Vellamy screamed "Or are you as dumb as you look? You've offered me a contract to star in this production—"

"But your signature ain't on it yet" Klein looked up quietly "What's more it isn't going to be" Slowly he opened the drawer of his desk Vellamy stared at him unbelievingly as he tore a sheaf of typewritten sheets into tiny bits

"What are you doing, you idiot" the actress demanded and stamped her foot

"Deciding to run my show myself

"Oh really" Miss Vellamy tossed her head "How extremely original It's just as well I've learned in time to accept another offer"

"Ain't it" Klein agreed

"You mean that you're going to be stubborn Max" Miss Vellamy smiled persuasively and undulating toward him, sat on the edge of his desk

"Say listen" Klein waved dismissal with his pudgy hand "Who asked you to come in here? Do you think I keep open house?"

A sharp retort paused at her lips Edna Vellamy recognized the tone that Klein had used This time she had overplayed her famous temperament Not only that, she shrewdly surmised that Klein had fallen for the girl who stood beside Jimmy Crane Edna tried to mask her fury with a contemptuous curl of her lip

"I suppose your idea's to retrench old dear she remarked sarcastically "Perhaps you're thinking of giving the lead to—a chorus girl"

"Edna," said Klein "sometimes you got brains Thanks for the suggestion"

Love's Reawakening

A Wife's Triumph Over Jealousy.

BY ADELE GARRISON

Promises to Noel and Mary, in Writing

WAS PHILIP VERITZEN psychic enough to hear the little voice in my consciousness which was insisting that he put his promises to Mary and Noel in writing? Or, was he distrustful of his own capricious and variable nature? I was never to know but when Noel and Mary had incoherently thanked him for his munificence he turned to me and said quietly

"May I have paper and a pen? I am a most variable person and I want to put it out of my power to rescind anything I have just said"

Noel spoke quickly, anxiously

"Does that mean, sir, that you wish us to sign an agreement not to marry until you give us permission"

It was indicative of the mental revolution in Philip Veritzen, I thought, that he gave no indication of offended dignity at his son's question, but only smiled quizzically at him

"That would be the surest method of making a mess of things that I know" he said No I shall require no written or oral promises from you I am turning your love affair over to Mrs Graham's guidance, and I am sure you think as I do that the queen can do no wrong"

He swept me another impressive bow, but I valued far more Noel's shy acquiescence

"I've always thought that, sir," he said with a smile at me "I'm willing to do whatever she says."

Three Contracts

"And will little Mary watch the straight and narrow path Auntie marks out?" Dicky's lovely young niece queried? "Just watch me!"

She punctuated the words with a strangle hug and when she had released me I sent her to the desk to arrange pen and paper for Mr. Veritzen's use. He sat down immediately and dashed off three separate short notations which he signed and brought over to me. They were in explicit, uncompromising terms, and the first renounced the elder Veritzen's right to control Noel's legacy from his mother, the second was the gist of a contract with Mary for training as a future Veritzen star, and the third was the option for Noel's work (with a munificent sum quoted) of which he had ...

"Read these over ... approve them ... you all ...

... wish you to sign until you have consulted some other authority"

Noel held out his hand for the option and then walked quickly to the desk picked up a pen, affixed his name and walking back put the option in his father's hands.

"Do you think sir?" he asked tensely, that I could possibly give my work to anyone but you, if you were willing to take it?"

Mr Veritzen's brilliant eyes were misty as he folded the paper and handed it to me

"If you will keep it with the others for the present," he said a bit unsteadily "How about them? Are they all right?"

"Indeed yes," I returned, "they are perfect."

"Thank you' Now" he threw back his head with a certain joyous abandon "I can begin to enjoy Christmas."

The blare of motor horns the flash of headlights past the windows, punctuated his words

An Insistent

"Is it possible?' Mr Veritzen asked, his voice uncertain, hesitant "is there any place where I could be alone for a little while? This this has meant so much to me, that I do not want to see—people - for a little while. But the rest of you must go of course"

"They'll be in here, of course," I said, "but there's a little room off this which I use as a sort of domestic office It is comfortable, with a fireplace in which there is a fire ready to light. And a door from it opens on a little side hall from which you can reach the side ... "Noel, take your father in there and see that he is comfortable—"

... ordinary in there first," Mr. ... said, imperatively. "I wish ... Graham alone for a ...

"I ...

... closed ... feet as the door ... them, and he looked ... smile. ... a tender, meaning

"I ha... no chance ... you, yet—I have ... opportun... Will you find the ... room for ... to that little ... you have ... or two whom ... thoroughly ... meeting, and ... ding? I ... should ... There was ... and ...

... been able to refuse to see him again alone but I heard the merry voices in the hall and knew that at any minute they might burst into the library So fighting against the wave of happiness which had threatened ... existing to engulf me I motioned Mr Veritzen toward the ... room to which Noel ... and Mary had gone and said in low tones

"I will come in there as soon as I can But it may be a long while."

He bent to my hand and kissed ...

"I shall wait there until you do come" he said no matter how long it is"

LOW PRICES MAKE JOBS
Increased Buying Speeds Wheels of Industry
All authorities agree that the best way to help business is to speed up consumption of goods. That sets idle wheels turning, increases employment of labor, and so adds to buying power. These same authorities agree that the best way to speed up consumption is to keep retail prices as low as possible. A&P does this in good times as well as in bad times. How it's policy has worked in the present circumstances is shown by the fact that A&P is steadily adding to its payroll
Today A&P is giving employment to 3,085 more wage earners than it did a year ago
During the last year because of the general stepping up of business, increases in salaries have been rare
A&P has increased the average wage of all its employees by more than $50 a year.
The fact that A&P has been able to hire more workers and raise wages during hard times is due directly to its policy of cutting the retail price of food as fast as growers and producers reduce their prices to A&P.

Annual Hospital Benefit Ball is Colorful Affair

ONE HUNDRED and fifty couples attended the third annual benefit ball sponsored by members of the Woman's Hospital board last night at Schwinger's. Although this organization is one of the youngest groups in the city, its work in financing projects at the Marion City hospital has been outstanding and the social affairs sponsored for some worthy cause have met with gratifying success and are being looked forward to with increasing interest each year.

Last night's affair, which was in charge of a committee headed by Mrs. Bennett Bindley as general chairman, was one of the most brilliant social events of the season and brought together a number of the younger set home from college, and out-of-town guests.

Members of the decorating committee of which Mrs. Frank R. Mann was chairman, chose to depart from the usual vari-colored Yuletide decorations this year and arranged a lovely effect in blue and white. The lights in the hall and annex were hung with white shades and white Christmas trees decorated with blue lights afforded a charming setting for the colorful gowns worn by the matrons and young women. Miniature Christmas trees separated the alcove from the main dance hall and here, beneath a white canopy was seated Richard's ensemble orchestra of New York, which played the dance program.

Tables for a buffet supper were arranged at one end of the annex and tables in the remainder of the room were placed for cards. Blue and white were the colors repeated in the decorations here, and the tables were centered with bowls of white roses and lighted with blue tapers. During the supper hour a group of dancers from the Oscar Conrad Dance studio entertained with dancing and Worth Cramer of Columbus was heard in a group of vocal numbers. Other entertaining features of the evening were the readings given by R. H. Tomlson of London, palmist, and the presentation of W. W. Durbin of Kenton, president of the International Brotherhood of Magicians, Mrs. Carl W. Sawyer and members of her committee were in charge of plans for the refreshments.

Mrs. Bindley as general chairman was assisted in arranging for the ball by Miss Geraldine Hord and Miss Emma O'Brien, ticket chairmen; Mrs. J. Malcolm Strelitz, entertainment chairman and her committee, Mrs. J. A. Dodd, Mrs. H. B. Hane, Mrs. J. H. Watters, Mrs. H. K. Mouser, Mrs. Edmund H. Keller, Mrs. Frank J. Longshore, and Mrs. Howard R. . . . Each year more millions check Colds 2 WAYS at once

Mother! The night coughs of children can usually be relieved by one application of Vicks. Just rub on freely and cover with warm flannel.

Millions more each year find there is nothing to equal the double attack of Vicks VapoRub in checking colds.

Rubbed on throat and chest, Vicks acts through the skin like a poultice or plaster, "drawing out" tightness and soreness. At the same time, its medicated vapors, released by the body heat, are breathed in direct to the air-passages.

Mothers especially appreciate Vicks because it avoids "dosing," which so often upsets children's delicate stomachs.

Adults, too, now prefer this modern method of checking colds. In fact, the whole trend of medical practice is away from needless "dosing."

CHAPTER 7

Jealousy

PERSPIRING in his shirt sleeves, Max Klein hung up his telephone with a grunt of satisfaction. Getting up from his swivel chair he waddled across his private office. In an obscure corner hung the faded likeness of an actor in the buskins of the tragic era.

"So this new kid's Bob Gray's daughter" Klein muttered. Funny how things worked out. Klein had loaned Gray the money for both his wife's confinements. And the actor had never even tried to pay it back" Klein took down the picture and carefully dusted it off.

"Hey, Miss Kohn" he called through the door. "Send this pitch to around to Wingate. Tell him to shoot me a hundred glossy prints over here right away. We'll need 'em for a story that's going out tomorrow."

His secretary took the portrait. "What's the idea?" she demanded. "Are you going to put on Hamlet and sign up a real ghost?"

"Ghost your grandmother" snorted Klein. "This guy's a whaddye call-'m' Yeah' An ancestor Broadway discoveries gotta have fathers and mothers—the kind that'll make good advertising. People don't remember that Bob Gray was a joke. This Aileen kid is going to inherit the mantle of his fame."

"Bologney" Miss Kohn snapped coldly. A noise in the outer office caused her to slam the door in alarm.

Looking through the glass partition, Klein saw an excited throng follow Jimmy and Aileen into his ante-room. "That boy's a wow" he beamed. "Look at 'em- count 'em' Baby' Every paper in town is taggin' 'em—even the sob-sisters. Lights' Camera' Whoopee!" He almost pushed Miss Kohn to the door, opened it and thrust her out as he glared belligerently at the waiting group.

"What the devil'" he exploded. "What d've think this is a loafing place" Shut up' Get out I'm busy. No interviews. Miss Kohn, I wouldn't see no reporters at all. I don't get a word' I say Klein slammed the door and stood behind it shaking with silent laughter. You had to hand it to these birds at first sight or two I think there was something fishy about the whole story."

Well, Chief it worked Jimmy announced as he and Aileen entered the inner office. "Didn't I tell you she'd hand it like a little veteran" That fuss and tumble at the end was all for the birds."

You're Pat. Suppose you go to jail. I ain't payin' your fine."

There won't be any fine" said Crane. The guy I slugged isn't going to show up. He knows he isn't supposed to."

How do you mean ain't supposed to."

I mean I gave him a ten spot to butt in and let me wallop him—just to make a fitting climax."

"But the feller left the cops his name was John R. Stearncourt. He's one of the biggest advertising men."

"But he isn't the guy I soaked. How can I help it" Jimmy asked. "Of the nut gave a phoney name?"

"Stearncourt will be wild-eyed" Klein said uneasily. "Maybe he's been talking and all these reporters outside."

"Sure" said Jimmy. "That's why they're here. I figured the old bird would raise a howl. It makes a better story."

As he spoke there was a commotion just outside the door. It flew open and Edna Vellamy strode in with flashing eyes. They were large and dark and furious, and ignoring the others presence she focused them on Klein.

"Do you think I'm going to stand for this" She shrieked at him. "Why you fool you've made me a laughing stock with this cheap publicity. Every paper in town will publish her picture in the morning." She flashed a glance of hatred in Aileen's direction. "I don't know how you're going to stop them but you've got to keep it out. Am I the star of this show or not"

Elbows on the blotter Klein rested his forehead on his palms until Edna should finish her tirade. He had been through this many times.

"Do you hear me" Miss Vellamy screamed. "Or are you as dumb as you look? You've offered me a contract to star in this production-"

"But your signature ain't on it yet" Klein looked up quietly. "What's more it isn't going to be." Slowly he opened the drawer of his desk. Vellamy stared at him unbelievingly as he tore a sheaf of typewritten sheets into tiny bits.

"What are you doing, you idiot?" the actress demanded and stamped her foot.

"Deciding to run my show myself."

"Oh really? Miss Vellamy tossed her head. "How extremely original. It's just as well I've learned in time to accept another offer."

"Ain't it" Klein agreed.

"You mean that you're going to be stubborn, Max" Miss Vellamy smiled persuasively and undulating toward him, sat on the edge of his desk.

"Say, listen" Klein waved dismissal with his pudgy hand. "Who asked you to come in here? Do you think I keep open house?"

A sharp retort paused at her lips. Edna Vellamy recognized the tone that Klein had used. This time she had overplayed her famous temperament. Not only that, she shrewdly surmised that Klein had fallen for the girl who stood beside Jimmy Crane. Edna tried to mask her fury with a contemptuous curl of her lip.

"I suppose your idea's to retrench, old dear" she remarked sarcastically. "Perhaps you're thinking of giving the lead to—a chorus girl."

"Edna," said Klein, "sometimes you got brains. Thanks for the suggestion."

LOW PRICES MAKE JOBS
Increased Buying Speeds Wheels of Industry

All authorities agree that the best way to help business is to speed up consumption of goods. That sets idle wheels turning, increases employment of labor, and so adds to buying power. These same authorities agree that the best way to speed up consumption is to keep retail prices as low as possible. A&P does this in good times as well as in bad times. How this policy has worked in the present circumstances is shown by the fact that A&P is steadily adding to its payroll.

Today A&P is giving employment to 3,085 more wage earners than it did a year ago.

During the last year, because of the general slowing up of business, increases in salaries have been rare.

A&P has increased the average wage of all its employees by more than $50 a year.

The fact that A&P has been able to hire more workers and raise wages during hard times is due directly to its policy of cutting the retail price of food as fast as growers and producers reduce their prices to A&P.

Love's Reawakening

A Wife's Triumph Over Jealousy.

BY ADELE GARRISON

Promises to Noel and Mary, in Writing.

WAS PHILIP VERITZEN psychic enough to hear the little voice in my consciousness which was insisting that he put his promises to Mary and Noel in writing? Or, was he distrustful of his own capricious and variable nature? I was never to know, but when Noel and Mary had incoherently thanked him for his munificence, he turned to me and said quietly.

"May I have paper and a pen? I am a most variable person, and I want to put it out of my power to rescind anything I have just said."

Noel spoke quickly, anxiously.

"Does that mean, sir, that you wish us to sign an agreement not to marry until you give us permission"

It was indicative of the mental revolution in Philip Veritzen, I thought, that he gave no indication of offended dignity at his son's question, but only smiled quizzically at him.

"That would be the surest method of making a mess of things that I know" he said. "No, I shall require no written or oral promises from you. I am turning your love affair over to Mrs. Graham's guidance, and I am sure you think as I do that the queen can do no wrong."

He swept me another impressive bow, but I valued far more Noel's shy acquiescence.

"I've always thought that, sir," he said with a smile at me. "I'm willing to do whatever she says."

Three Contracts

"And will little Mary watch the straight and narrow path. Auntie marks out?" Dicky's lovely young niece queried? "Just watch me!"

She punctuated the words with a strangle hug and when she had released me I sent her to the desk to arrange pen and paper for Mr. Veritzen's use. He sat down immediately and dashed off three separate short notations which he signed and brought over to me. They were in explicit, unpromising terms, and the first renounced the elder Veritzen's right to control Noel's legacy from his mother, the second was the gist of a contract with Mary for training as a future Veritzen star, and the third was the option for Noel's work (with a munificent sum quoted) of which he had spoken.

"Read these over and see if you approve them" he said. "Then if you all sign these first two, as witnesses, I will leave them in your care. This option, Noel, I do not wish you to sign until you have consulted some other authority."

Noel held out his hand for the option and then walked quickly to the desk, picked up a pen, affixed his name, and walking back put the option in his father's hands.

"Do you think, sir?" he asked tensely, "that I could possibly give my work to anyone but you, if you were willing to take it?"

Mr. Veritzen's brilliant eyes were misty as he folded the paper and handed it to me.

"If you will keep it with the others for the present," he said, a bit unsteadily. "How about them? Are they all right?"

"Indeed, yes," I returned, "they are perfect."

"Thank you! Now!" he threw back his head with a certain joyous abandon. "I can begin to enjoy Christmas."

The blare of motor horns, the flash of headlights past the windows, punctuated his words.

An Insistent

"Is it possible?" Mr. Veritzen asked, his voice uncertain, hesitant—"is there any place where I could be alone for a little while? This this has meant so much to me, that I do not want to see—people—for a little while. But the rest of you must go of course."

"They'll be in here, of course" I said, "but there's a little room off this which I use as a sort of domestic office. It is comfortable, with a fireplace in which there is a fire ready to light. And a door from it opens on a little side hall from which you can reach the side veranda. Noel take your father in there, and see that he is comfortable."

"Take Mary in there first," Mr. Veritzen said imperatively. "I wish to see Mrs. Graham alone for a second."

"I got to my feet as the door closed behind them, and he looked down at me with a tender, meaning smile.

"I haven't told you yet—I have no chance now—Will you find the opportunity to come to that little room for a minute or two when you have greeted your guests and thoroughly mixed your social pudding? I must see you."

There was assurance in his voice and something else, elusive but unmistable. I had feared it ever since he had mistaken my cry that "I could not bear it" to mean that my disappointment in him meant more to me than my concern for Noel and Mary.

I would have given much to have been able to refuse to see him again alone but I heard the merry voices in the hall, and knew that at any minute they might burst into the library. So fighting against the wave of dizziness which had threatened all evening to engulf me, I motioned Mr. Veritzen toward the little room to which Noel and Mary had gone, and said in low tones:

"I will come in there as soon as I can. But it may be a long while."

He bent to my hand and kissed it.

"I shall wait there until you do come," he said, "no matter how long it is."

Daily Proverb—"If you slander a dead man you stab him in his grave."

A Dublin cable says Ireland no longer needs the pity of the world; that there are few jobless there. Maybe so, but she still has Eamon de Valera.

Seven stolen automobiles reported to the police over the week-end and six of them recovered. Looks as though the holiday joyriders were more than ordinarily active.

"Norris Declines To Head New Party; Says He Is Still a Republican," reads a headline over a Washington story. If George has a particle of humor in his make-up, he must have smiled when he made that claim.

Ten men and one woman arrested in Detroit for intoxication, Sunday, confessed to the judge before whom they appeared that they had purchased the liquor with tickets given them by the city welfare department with which to buy food and lodging. Can you beat it?

A Washington dispatch says that, with both Norris and Borah refusing to head a third party, "Pinchot has the field to himself." Of course, the suggestion can hardly be held much more than a hint, but if Gifford turns it down, we'll be open to conviction that the leopard can change its spots.

A New York story says that a "backward look over the year shows a drop from the peaks." And the odd phase of the thing was that it was actually run as a news story!

One of these days the press associations of the country might pause to consider whether Senator Gerald Nye, of North Dakota, is really worth all the free publicity which they are giving him on the strength of what he says he thinks or does not think.

That Australian scientist might have withheld his announcement of the probable existence of a mighty prehistoric cat of fearsome appearance in the hinterland of Queensland till after New Year's eve. The revelers will be seeing enough fearsome things without any such addition to the menagerie.

Virtual Slavery in Russia.

There hardly longer can be question that a virtual state of slavery exists in soviet Russia. This assertion is not based on the messages found on the blocks of pulp wood shipped from Archangel to the International Paper company and now on exhibition at Piercefield, described in a dispatch from Saranac Lake, New York, which tells of the situation in Siberia, where thousands of workers are said to be dying from exposure and lack of food, but on recent official soviet decrees which have reached the international labor office in Geneva, Switzerland. As an international official puts it, if these decrees do "not make most of the labor in Russia practically forced labor," they do seem to make free labor in the western sense of the word, "no longer existent there."

These decrees provide that, while workers retain their right to quit their jobs by giving seven days' notice, such workers become deserters if they exercise the right, and soviet employment agencies, through which alone work can be obtained, are forbidden to give skilled workers who thus desert their jobs any employment for six months other than manual labor.

The decree further provides that engineers and skilled workmen are subject to and skilled workmen are subject to transfer to a different city or town anywhere in Russia without their consent at the will of the government. It is also set out in the decrees that unemployed persons must accept any job offered them no matter what or where it may be, or lose their right to be considered unemployed, and there is the final provision abolishing the unemployment dole, the government having decided that the 600,000 persons who made applications for work in October as unemployed are in the category of those refusing jobs.

These decrees, it is pointed out by League of Nations officials have nothing whatever to do with the convict labor of Russia, of which so much has been said and written, but aply to those who are supposed to be enjoying the blessings of that "Liberty and Equality" of which communistic agitators and soviet Russian propagandists over here are so inclined to prate.

To be absolutely fair to the Stalin government, it may be said that there is a possibility that these decrees are but temporary measures designed to instill discipline into the ranks of the workers similar to that practiced in the numerically mighty army of Russia. None outside the councils of the soviet government can speak with assurance on this point, but whether the decrees are merely temporary measures or are to be permanent in their effect they show that labor is virtually enslaved in the land in which labor is supposed to rule.

A Real Farm Relief Measure.

Secretary of Agriculture Arthur M. Hyde believes that a potential increase in the market for corn ranging anywhere from 5,000,000 to 100,000,000 bushels a year will result from his cancellation of the requirement that the use of corn sugar in canned foods must be declared on the labels. There's a decided gap between 5,000,000 and 100,000,000 bushels, but those are the secretary's figures, and we present them as such.

Secretary Hyde, in taking his action, explained that he had removed the discrimination for the reason that there was no longer need of it and that it had been permitted far too long. He expressed the opinion that the expansion of the corn sugar industry would not react to the disadvantage of domestic cane and beet sugar producers. He stated that there was good reason for the rule at the time of its adoption, twenty-three years ago, for at that time the method of producing corn sugar was so crude that the product was a muddy brown color of a sweet content of less than fifty per cent., while corn sugar as produced today has a sweet content of seventy-five per cent. and has valuable properties not found in cane sugar.

The restriction placed on corn sugar was not the result of a direct legal enactment, but of a simple ruling of the agricultural department, and its removal from corn sugar will in no way affect food and drug control and will not alter the rules regarding labeling injurious ingredients in foods.

Should the increased market for corn be increased but 5,000,000 bushels yearly, that would represent only about two per cent. of the cash corn reaching the primary market, and have little effect other than the increased sale of that much more corn, but should the increase in the corn market reach 100,000,000 bushels, that would mean an increase of about thirty-five per cent., and should work to the boosting of the price of the grain, for it is not the immense annual corn crop of the land on which the price is fixed but on the actual demand in the primary cash market. If this demand is increased thirty-five per cent., the price of corn will naturally go up and result to the benefit of the grain growers.

Thus it may be seen that Secretary Hyde's action is a farm relief measure, and a most practical one at that; a radical departure in this respect from many of the panaceas for farm relief which, while good in theory, have been found wanting when put to the test.

There were twenty-five lynchings in the United States up to December 29, against twelve in 1929. Civilization can hardly be held to be making the progress it should.

Statistics show that the overlapping governments up there have cost Cook county and the city of Chicago $156,405,500 during 1930. What may not the awful cost of similar overlapping governments throughout the country?

Every Bit Helps.

According to the figures given out from Columbus by the Ohio Building Association league, the 25,715 depositors and stockholders in the various building, savings and loan companies of the county, of which the resources total $12,230,603, will profit by the way of dividend and interest earnings in the sum of approximately $610,000, which will mean an annual return of almost five per cent. on their investments.

This is not run as a bit of news, for the salient facts were published Monday, but rather as a foundation for speculation regarding the probable effect of these dividend and interest disbursements upon local business conditions.

It may be recalled that the mailing of Christmas club checks aggregating $141,500 had quite a stimulating effect locally. Will this total of $610,000, about four and a half times the size of the Christmas distribution, have a proportionate effect? This can hardly be anticipated, for the reason that the Christmas club funds had been saved for Christmas buying and the distribution came at a time when the Christmas spirit was strong, while the coming distribution will come at tax-paying time and a considerable proportion of it may go to the county treasurer. It is possible that some of the earnings have already been withdrawn. Even so, it is not unlikely that some of it may go to the payment of bills contracted at Christmas time and some be expended for the purchase of articles needed, the buying of which has been deferred. It's pretty close to a certainty that a goodly portion of it will get into circulation, one way or another, and that's what is needed to get away from the present business recession and back to normal. Every bit helps.

Figures just given out show that twenty-three Ohioans had incomes of over $1,000,000 in 1928, and there wasn't anything to show that a single spreader of joy and sunshine in paragraphs figured in the list. How queer!

According to a Washington story, forty "dry" members of the lower house of congress are waiting only for a propitious moment to vote wet. Aha! At last some of our "dry" legislators are going to vote as they drink!

Through a written test in which he spelled street and curbing "streat" and "curben," a Kansas City youth was given a prison sentence of two and a half years on a third-degree burglary charge, his spelling of the two words having been identical with that in a blackmailing threat traced to him which led to a confession. Education may pay after all.

A man over in the state of Delaware shot and killed another man and a young girl because she decided to dance with the other man rather than with him. And it was a square dance at that! That fellow certainly takes the delight of the Terpsichorean art too seriously.

A new criminal court record was established in 1929 by Logansport, Indiana, nineteen youths were sent to the state reform farm, seven men to the penitentiary, seven others to the state penal farm and one woman to the state women's prison. Considering its population, Logansport probably has attained the questionable distinction of having established a countrywide record in convictions for crime.

RED FLANNEL SENATORS.

It may be unusually exasperating for the radicals in the senate to observe on the part of the administration a determined and resolute effort to get their own congregations away from them. President Hoover quite apparently has never taken his political eyes off the oddities and curiosities which swelled his vote two years ago. These marginal vagaries may have impressed him as constituting the core of Republican strength. Greater political experience would advise him that they were entirely vagarious and useless in Republican councils. However, it seems to appear otherwise in Washington.

The administration bid for radical-dry populace evidently has provoked the radical senators into more fitful wildness. Usually they must taunt an administration for not being with them, but when they see signs of an encroachment upon their preserves they will take to the wilder open places. Mr. Hoover can not keep up with them. They will never let him agree with them. They will always go higher and further with more reproaches because he is following them.

The ultimate test is the wearing of the radical emblem, red flannel underwear. Parlor radicals such as Pinchot and Cutting may trim it with lace, but wear it they must. If it should appear on the White House line it will only be evidence that the administration is making the last futile effort for a coalition which would blow up rather than merge.—Chicago Tribune.

THE GREAT GOD PIGSKIN SICKENS.

Bill Roper and Purdue's president are not the only prophets of the end of the "Great God Pigskin." A change in the public's attitude toward commercialized collegiate sport is as noticeable today as the change in the undergraduate's attitude. The student has, for some time now, taken his athletics with saving sanity. The "I'd die for dear old Rutgers spirit" passed out years ago, and its vestiges can scarcely be found in the high schools.

The great public, which is the source of the six figure gate receipts, is gradually awakening to the undergradute's change of temper and attendance at all but big, strenuously publicized games is falling off.

When Northwestern's winning team can not inspire enough enthusiasm among student supporters to produce an old-time, emotional pep meeting, the business man and the sports follower who pay as high as $20 a seat to scalpers for a single ticket to the Notre Dame-Northwestern game begins to get suspicious. He begins to wonder about the sincerity of this football pageantry, and losing the power to believe in it, he loses much of his interest.

It would seem that the "Great God Pigskin" is sickening. Men are beginning to doubt his immortality, and doubting, they are aggravating his disease. Men are beginning to subject him to rational analysis, and few gods survive rational analysis.—Evanston Northwestern.

Logan's Last Use of the War Club.

BY J. H. GALBRAITH.

The speech of Logan on the occasion of the Dunmore treaty, now known to have been dictated to Captain John Gibson, was not the only sample of the old chief's ability to put his thoughts into concise, clear English. While he was still engaged in wreaking vengeance upon the whites in retaliation for the murder of his relatives, as he erroneously supposed, under the direction of Captain Michael Cresap, he ordered William Robinson, who had been captured by the Indians and was held by Logan under adoption, to bring him a piece of paper and making ink by dissolving gunpowder in water, he dictated a note which he proposed to leave on the scene of his next massacre.

This was on July 21, several months before the Dunmore treaty conference in Pickaway county, and here is the note addressed to Captain Cresap: "What did you kill my people on Yellow creek for." The white people killed my kin at Conestoga a great while ago and I thought nothing of it. But you killed my kin on Yellow creek and took my cousin prisoner. Then I thought I must kill also. And I have been three times to war since then. But the Indians are not angry, only myself."

This he signed "Captain John Logan." On his fourth foray among the white settlements, made soon afterward, he did so use this note. It was found pinned to a war club left among the mangled bodies of the family of John Roberts, a settler on Reedy creek, in Virginia—evidence that it was the work of Logan.

This was one of the last of Logan's forays into Virginia. Soon then Dunmore's army was on its way toward the Ohio, and Logan retired toward the interior of Ohio, where he was when the Indians frightened by the force that faced them, sought conference with a view to a treaty.

Body Resistance.

BY ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

When the newspapers printed the report that his son had contracted tuberculosis, the sympathy of the whole nation went out to the President and to his family. Probably no disease is more universally feared. Practically every one of us has some personal reason for knowing its ravages—has had some relative or friend or acquaintance who has fallen a victim.

The germs of this disease are so widely scattered through the civilized world that it is impossible to avoid all contact with them. Indeed, it is said that nearly all adults carry them about in their bodies.

The most common form of the disease is tuberculosis of the lungs. But almost any part of the body may be affected.

Under ordinary circumstances, fortunately, the lines of defense of our bodies are sufficient to withstand the assaults of these and other germs. We are in danger only when the resistance of the body is lowered by disease, overwork, long-continued strain of some kind, failure to get fresh air and proper food. Then it is that the germs get a foothold and begin their work of destruction.

If care is not taken, the course of the disease may be very rapid. But, on the other hand, if it is recognized in the early stages and given prompt attention, there is every prospect of recovery.

The earlier symptoms are indefinite in character. But they should attract attention to the fact that something is wrong. There is general weakness, irritability, loss of weight and of appetite, sometimes pain in the chest or back.

Complete rest, plenty of fresh air and sunlight, nourishing food, freedom from worry, are the chief factors in bringing about recovery. Some climates are especially recommended for one reason or another. But where it is impossible for the patient to be sent away, a suitable environment can usually be arranged in the home, or near at hand.

The family physician is the one best able to advise what should be done. If the treatment is to be carried on at home he will give directions for protecting the health of the other members of the family as well as for the care of the patient.

Bear in mind that the disease is curable. If the patient will follow instructions there is every prospect of a complete cure.—Copyright, 1930, by Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.

FAULT OF STATE LAWS.

Editor Star— We wish to notify you that we heartily indorse your stand in the selection of a chief of police, and believe that if all law-abiding citizens of Marion would give you their loyal support we would be able to have a man, such as you describe, as chief of our police force.

You have always been so loyal to our home town, and have so nobly supported every issue for the betterment of the greatest number of people, that we have been surprised that you have had nothing to say about the way home contracts have been let to out-of-town people, that do not need it, while our own men, taxpayers who foot the bills, are forced to be idle while their families lack the very necessities of life.

We believe that charity begins at home, and object to contracts for public buildings being let to imported labor while our own citizens must suffer in silence.

Goodyear, Magician of Rubber.

BY ARCHIBALD HENDERSON.

Four centuries ago, the natives of Brazil were gathering rubber by much the same methods as those employed today. In the trunks of the trees they made incisions; and later they would come by and gather the fluid from the clay cups placed to receive it. Returning to their grass huts, they would pour the liquid rubber into receptacles placed over the fire, and with paddles turn and harden the toxic gum. After a sufficient amount has hardened around the wooden paddles, the rubber "biscuit" is cut off with a wet knife. It is now ready for shipment and sale, to be manufactured into innumerable conveniences indispensable for industry, commerce, trade and transportation.

Ever since the fifteenth century, when Columbus noted the Haytians playing with rubber balls, inventors, chemists, scientists have been tinkering with rubber, with results of incalculable importance in modern life. It was not, however, until the second quarter of the nineteenth century that the magician, Goodyear, came upon the scene and wrought the marvelous transformation in industry effected by the discovery of the vulcanizing process.

Charles Goodyear, of distinguished descent, was born at New Haven, Connecticut, December 29, 1800. From his father, Charles inherited, no doubt, the inventive turn. For his father, a pioneer in the manufacture of American hardware, was the inventor of the steel hay fork which did so much to lighten and expedite the task of the field laborer. He also manufactured the first pearl buttons made in America, and during the War of 1812, his factory supplied metal buttons to the government.

Charles was very devout, early joined the Congregational church, and at first intended to enter the ministry. However, he changed his mind, learned the hardware business, and became a partner in a firm established in Philadelphia by his father. But the firm failed, and Charles was lodged in the debtor's prison.

Shortly before this he had become deeply interested in the study of rubber, which he believed promised wonderful developments. In all his numerous trials and tribulations, which were truly tragic, his piety sustained him. He believed that he was called by God to perform this particular task of discovering the commercial properties of rubber. In later life he wrote: "He who directs the operations of the mind can turn it to the development of the properties of nature in his own way, and at the time when they are specially needed. The creature imagines he is executing some plan of his own, while he is simply an instrument in the hands of his Maker for executing the divine purposes of beneficence to the race."

In his debtor's prison, where he was allowed facilities for experimenting by the officials, he tinkered away with rubber gum. He made experiments with magnesia and rubber, mixed together, boiling the combination—only to be disappointed in the result. Somewhat later he applied nitric acid to rubber, hoping in that way to "cure" the rubber. But failure was the invariable result of his experiments, and eventually he was reduced to dire poverty.

Five years after he had begun to experiment, he discovered, by a happy accident, the secret of vulcanization which cures not the surface only but the entire mass. While trying to harden some gum by boiling it with sulphur on his wife's cookstove, he dropped a lump on the red hot top. The rubber instantly vulcanized. Goodyear recognized the incident as a providential discovery. After five years of further experiment and struggle, he took out his patent in 1844. Daniel Webster won the case for Goodyear in the famous case of Goodyear vs. Day for infringement of patent in 1852. Goodyear discovered not only the secret of vulcanization, but also the method of making perfect rubber cloth. Charles Goodyear was a great benefactor of the human race.—Copyright, 1930, International Feature Service, Inc.

BRITISH GENTLEMEN hunt the stag on horses, stag hounds pursuing the frightened deer. That gives riders a good appetite for liquids and solids and there is usually no complaint since the deer can't write to the newspapers.

But now the house of commons and many others in England are excited because one stag frightened by the hounds, ran off the south coast of England into the sea and was drowned.

Usually the stag shakes his tail once or twice, hops over the nearest fence, is gone and seen no more.

But many in this country will agree with some kind-hearted members of parliament that it is an outrage to pursue a stag with hounds and drown the stag.

And we take calmly the fact that 500,000 traps, at this moment are holding animals of different kinds caught for their fur and doomed to suffer agony until the trapper, at his leisure, comes to release them.

Sometimes such an animal will bite off its leg and thus gain freedom for a crippled life. And everybody knows how fishing is done.

COURT GETS FINAL CRIME CASE OF YEAR

Alfred Lamb on Trial for Obtaining Property Under False Pretense.

The final criminal case on the 1930 docket was being heard today by a jury in common pleas court.

The defendant, Alfred Lamb, 19, is charged with obtaining property under false pretense. He is accused of having given his age as 21 when he purchased a car last summer from Zeb Stout, local dealer, who is the complaining witness.

After having the car in his possession for several weeks, the youth returned the machine to the dealer with the explanation that he would be unable to meet the payments, he said on the stand this morning. His first payment was made with a used car.

The law firm of Clark & Arter represents the defendant while Prosecuting Attorney Alfred Donithen is assisted by Carter M. Patton in the prosecution.

DOG LEADS WAY TO MINE GAS VICTIMS

Five Pennsylvania Youths Die After Entering Workings for Coal.

By The Associated Press

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Dec. 30—A shaggy dog, whose nervous barking and whining could not be stilled, led a man into an abandoned mine in the south hills last night and there five boys were found victims of gas.

Today, white crepe symbols replaced holly wreaths at the homes of Steve Polka, 16; Andrew Novak, 16; John Vogick, 14; Walter Kubala, 15 and Joseph Kasicik, 17.

The boys went into the mine to gather coal for their families. Several of them carried candles. About three-quarters of a mile in they began to drop.

The dog, constant companion of the Vogick boy, returned home alone. When it could not be quieted the boy's father followed the dog to the pit.

United States Bureau of Mines men, police and firemen worked for hours in an effort to revive the boys. One was dead when he was brought from the mine. The others died in a hospital.

Battalion Chief Saul Klein was overcome while trying to save the lads. He is recovering in a hospital.

RENEW EFFORTS TO SOLVE HOTEL DEATH

Body of Victim Tentatively Identified; Police Lean to Murder Theory.

By The Associated Press

CINCINNATI, O., Dec. 30—Tentative identification of the body of a young woman found in a hotel room here early Sunday as that of Mrs. Mildred Asher, wife of Jack L. Asher, formerly of Cincinnati, started police today on renewed efforts to solve her mysterious death.

Three men, Ira Landsey, Malcolm Boone and James Patterson, viewed the body last night and declared it was that of Mrs. Asher, whom all knew.

Officers immediately began a search for Asher and a man known to the three men only as "Jimmy," who resembled the man described by hotel officials as the one who registered himself and the victim as Mr. and Mrs. H. Miller, of Columbus. "Miller" has not been seen since the woman's body was found.

As far as Lindsey could remember, Mrs. Asher originally came from a small town near Hamilton, he said.

Coroner Fred C. Swing returned a verdict of self destruction in connection with the woman's death late yesterday but police still leaned toward a slaying.

Dr. Swing said he believed the victim hanged herself from the curtain rod around the shower in her bathroom.

ommended mercy for them." "All assignments of error have been carefully examined and found to be without merit," the court said.

Resisted Gunmen

The ruling of the court adds another dramatic page to the slaying of Wilcox. The Galion filling station attendant was fatally wounded when he resisted efforts of three men to rob his filling station.

Before Wilcox died, Massa, McCartney and Sites were arrested by Richland county authorities and sentenced to the Ohio penitentiary for kidnaping and attacking a young Mansfield woman.

Upon the death of Wilcox, the trio was indicted by a Crawford county grand jury and returned to Bucyrus for trial. In three weeks a trio of juries found them guilty of first degree murder without recommendation of mercy. They were taken to the penitentiary to await death or action of higher courts.

PICKREL WINNER IN LT.-GOVERNOR RACE

Long Uncertainty Dispelled by Sec. of State Brown; Margin Slight.

By International News Service

COLUMBUS, O., Dec. 30—All uncertainty as to who will occupy the lieutenant gubernatorial chair of Ohio for the next two years was virtually dispelled today with the announcement that William G. Pickrel, Democrat, Dayton, had defeated lieutenant-Governor John T. Brown, Republican of Mechanicsburg, by the bare majority of 417 votes.

Although the election was held Nov. 4, it was not until late yesterday that all doubt as to the outcome of the race for the lieutenant governorship was eliminated by the official declaration of Secretary of State Clarence J. Brown.

The announcement followed a session of the state canvassing board at which revised official returns from the various county election boards were rechecked. The final double checked returns disclosed Pickrel received a total of 916,744 votes and Brown 916,327.

REMOVE TREES

"White Way" Lights on Main St. Necessitates Cutting of Trees.

The march of progress today is sweeping a dozen shade trees along South Main street out of existence. For years these trees have given shade to residences on Main street for more than a block north of Columbia street. Recent installation of "white way" street lights, and widening of the street has made the trees unsightly and out of place.

A dozen trees, large and small, have been removed or soon will be cut away. The work is being done by the city service department, with consent of the property owners. These trees were formerly located between the sidewalk and the curbine along the street.

KLEIN SEES UPWARD TREND IN NEW YEAR

All Indications Point Toward Better Times, Federal Authority Says.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 30—All commercial and industrial indicators available to the commerce department for 1931 definitely point upward, Dr. Julius Klein, assistant secretary of commerce, and one of the country's leading business authorities, declared today.

Just when the first indication of the long fight back to prosperity will start Klein refused to predict, remarking the country has suffered considerable "overprediction" as well as "overproduction." Nevertheless he agreed with the position taken by Irving T. Bush of New York, that business conditions throughout the world would show an improvement by the end of 1931.

Klein also took the view, understood to be that of Secretary of the Treasury Mellon and other high officials that the United States would be the first of the commercial nations of the world to show recovery.

According to Klein's view, there should be a turn for the better following the early months of the year, although whether it would be in the first quarter or the second would not be difficult to forecast.

The public should be warned not to be unduly pessimistic at the annual statements of business establishments which will be issued early in the new year," Klein said.

CLEVELAND, O., Dec. 30—John J. Bernet, president of the Chesapeake & Ohio and the Pere Marquette, said today that the fact that railroads have spent about $1,000,000,000 in improvements in 1930, unnecessary to move the decreased business, is a demonstration of the carriers' belief that better times are coming.

THAWS IN JAIL

Jobless Man Too Proud to Ask Help; Sleeps on Ground.

By The Associated Press

ESCANABA, Mich., Dec. 30—Charles Wells, 57, lost his job about four months ago, but when his funds gave out he was too proud to ask help. He selected a soft spot on the ground in the woods near Escanaba, northern Michigan, and slept in the open four weeks, with only snow and his overcoat to cover him.

But it began to turn really cold, so persons who knew where Wells slept feared he would freeze. They called the sheriff and Wells was in jail today to thaw out.

Wells said sleeping in the woods was "a good way to pass the time."

Declines Recognition of New Government

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Dec. 30—The American legation at Guatemala City on instructions of the state department has informed the Guatemalan government the United States will not recognize the regime of President Orellana.

Department officials refused to comment. It was said on high authority, however, that the disinclination to extend recognition to Guatemala was based on the terms of the treaty of 1923 which set forth the conditions under which new regimes in Central America may be recognized.

SCIENTIST REPORTS TB GERM STUDY

Absence of Element That Absorbs Sunlight Seen as Cause of Menace.

By The Associated Press

CLEVELAND, O., Dec. 30—The tuberculosis germ either lacks or strangely conceals a peculiar alcohol common to most living things and this may account for his deadliness.

The missing alcohol is a sterol, a substance which absorbs the benefits of sunshine and light and not associated with drinkables.

Discovery of the deficiency was reported today by Dr. Robert J. Anderson of Yale university to the chemistry session of the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

"Sterols of some kind," he said, "are always associated with the fats in all living cells. In the examination of the fats and lipoids obtained from tubercule bacilli we have never been able to isolate even traces of true sterols or of substances which give any of the usual sterol reactions.

"The sterol is one of several chemical peculiarities in the tubercle bacillus reported by Dr. Anderson. These oddities are sought as entering wedges in the search for something to loosen the germ from his grip.

One of the most significant, said the bacteriologists, is the fact that although the four types of tuberculosis bacilli are so similar they can scarcely be distinguished apart, yet when reduced to chemical elements they are tremendously different. The four are human, bovine, bird and timothy hay, the latter harmless.

BLISS COLLEGE DEFEATS Y-INDUS 32-2

EDDIE PLANK STARS AS 20 GAME VICTORY STREAK IS SNAPPED

Locals Display Poor Passwork for First Time This Season.

Hopes for twenty-one consecutive victories on the home floor were abruptly shattered last night for the Y-Indus basketball club as the Bliss Business College cagers of Columbus handed the locals the short end of a 32 to 25 score. The defeat was the fourth suffered in 11 starts this season by the Shovel five.

The Shovel club opened the game by taking a lead immediately after the start and hanging on to it throughout the difficult first period. Lockwood started the scoring with a one handed shot. The Y club dropped in one more field goal and a free toss to complete the scoring in the first quarter.

Neither team could hit the net with any degree of consistency in the first period. Eddie Plank, brilliant center for the collegians missed a lot of close-in shots in the quarter although he played a clever game on the floor.

Vic Gillis, who usually is an accurate shot put on a weak exhibition of shooting during the entire first half regained his shooting eye in the second half and ran his scoring total to 12 points for the game.

The downfall of the Y-Indus club can be attributed to the inability of the team to control the tip-off from center. Plank also did about everything else connected with the game in a quite thorough manner. However, except playing an excellent floor game, breaking up about half the Y-Indus plays, controlling the center jump and collecting 10 points to lead his team in scoring he did not do anything in particular.

Sloppy ball handling in the second half did not help the chance of victory for the local team. Entering the third period 11-9 the Y-Indus team was guilty of some poor floorwork and listless playing. The usual smooth passwork was missing and the general floor play left much to be desired.

Bliss saw its advantage almost wiped out in the final quarter as the locals connected for enough points to put the Shovel club within two points of tying the count. Plank, as usual came through with several points and the Business team was out in front with an advantage that could not be overcome.

Mileusnich, Bliss guard, played a classy defensive game for the winners. Plank was easily the outstanding player on the floor on offense for either team.

AS is usually the case, the coaches of the two football teams which will participate in the Tournament of Roses football game are doing little talking. The public need not despair of hearing all there is to be heard concerning the two teams though; not as long as there are outsiders to publish the news.

It seems that nearly everyone has picked Alabama to carry the standard of the eastern coast to victory. Everybody but Coach "Babe" Hollinbery and his lineup of Cougars. In the end these are the very ones who are apt to be called upon to decide the issue but that doesn't make very much difference.

Both teams boast excellent records both defensively and offensively. The Cougars have not been defeated but have been held to one single point win by Southern California and a three point victory by the University of Washington. Alabama has not been beaten and has not been pressed to its limit to win in any of its games this season.

Two different types of football may make their appearance in the game. Alabama has always stressed offensive play while Washington frequently is content to get a lead and then play defensively. It is probable though that a good defensive game will not be enough in this battle.

ROBERT TYRE JONES DOMINATES RANKS OF GOLFING WORLD

With Four Major Victories Bobby Outdistances Entire Field of Competitors.

BY H. H. RAMSAY
By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Dec. 30. Golf in 1930 can be summarized in three words: Robert Tyre Jones.

When the major competitions of the year were over, this supreme golfer had won the four outstanding national competitions, a record that has never before been approached in the history of the game. The announcement of his withdrawal from further competition was not a great surprise to those who have watched his progress through the years. Like Alexander, he had no more worlds to conquer.

The retirement, though, of this supreme master leaves golf in 1931 in a most interesting condition and we look forward to the competitive season with keen interest. The removal of the one man who might be called the dominating figure in the game means that all the other competitors are going to outdo themselves in the coming year.

The first of the major events in 1931 will be the British amateur championship, to be held at Westward Ho beginning May 18. There will probably be but few entries from this country. This will be followed by the British Open championship to be held at Carnoustie, Scotland, early in June.

My information is that among the American professionals to be entered are MacDonald Smith, Horton Smith and Walter Hagen. It is likely that each of these three players will give a good account of himself. And one of them might well win the championship.

In the latter part of June, the Ryder cup matches will be played at the Scioto Country club, Columbus, O., by teams of professional golfers representing the United States and Great Britain. This will be one of the most interesting competitions of the year.

In July, the United States open championship will be played over the course of the Inverness club at Toledo, O.

In September the National Amateur championship will be played at the Beverly Country club, Chicago. With Jones absent this will be a keen competition and will certainly bring out all of the amateur stars of this country.

Then comes the national women's championship, to be held at the Buffalo Country club, where Glenna Collett will have an opportunity to exceed her world's record for this competitoin.

TEAMS POLISH OFF ATTACKS FOR GAME

'Bama, Washington State Ready for Tournament of Roses Battle.

By The Associated Press

PASADENA, Calif., Dec. 30—Washington State and Alabama, the tournament of Roses football standard bearers, found today not just Tuesday, but one of the two remaining days before their intersectional clash.

The nearness of the New Year's day game sent the Cougars representatives of the west, into a stiff final drill. Coach Orin "Babe" Hollingbery, plans to ease up tomorrow with, at most, a limbering up workout.

The Alabama crew, feeling the weight of its responsibility as the representative of the south and east, went into a hard practice with the idea of polishing off its attack.

The Crimson Tide visited a movie studio where Will Rogers is making a picture and were his guests at luncheon. The Cougars watched Dorothy McKaill and Mary Astor work before the camera.

Coach Wallace Wade of Tuscaloosa aggregation sent his men through a light workout in the afternoon. As he watched the Tide roll through dummy scrimmage, he said Washington State was the strongest defensive team he had seen play this year.

In the meantime betting continued to favor the 'Bama boys, although Hollingbery of the Cougars seemed unconcerned.

Agosta Teams To Play in Charity Cage Game

Charity will profit again Wednesday night at Agosta when a double basketball program will be played in that town with the proceeds going to charitable causes.

The Agosta Independents will play a quintet of vacationing college boys in the principal game of the bill. Agosta High school will play an unannounced five in a preliminary battle.

No admission will be charged to the games but a volunteer collection will be taken following the contests. All proceeds will be given to charity. The games will be played in the Agosta town hall.

WILL DISCONTINUE GIRLS' TOURNAMENTS

Ohio High School Athletic Association Abandons Basketball Tourneys.

By United Press

COLUMBUS, O., Dec. 30—Girls' basketball tournaments will be discontinued in Ohio after Sept. 1, 1931.

This action was taken late yesterday at a meeting of the state board of control of the Ohio High School Athletic association. Ballots returned by members of the association were opened, showing 598 for the proposal to eliminate girls' basketball meetings and 252 favoring their continuance.

Elimination of girls' basketball tournaments in the state has been sought by health authorities and educators for several years. The reasons given were the undue physical and emotional strain caused by playing several hard games in one or two days.

The new ruling will not affect regular competitive girls' contests—only elimination contests that call for more than one game a week. The rule will not be in effect until the 1932 season.

COACHES DECIDE TO ADOPT GRID REFORMS

Curtailing of Practice Periods Gets Most Emphasis from Football Mentors.

BY ALAN GOULD

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Dec. 30—College football coaches and officials it was apparent today, have decided to take the initiative in bringing about much-debated reforms and eradicating the alleged evils of over-emphasis.

After a season in which the great gridiron game, in spite of business conditions, has in many instances risen to new and spectacular heights, these shaping the destinies of the sport have decided it needs a pretty thorough overhauling and a substantial deflation unless it is to lose proper proportion in the college athletic scheme of things.

The ills now under diagnosis are not new. They were stressed at length a year ago in the Carnegie foundation report. They have been pronounced serious enough to warrant some prompt corrective measures.

Three Reforms Listed

Chief among these are:

1—Abolition of spring practice and limiting of fall practice for college football squads.

2—Active and immediate steps to curb the growing pains of subsidizing and recruiting.

3—Less emphasis on gate receipts, less prominence to the coaches' control of the play and less commercial influence in the make-up of schedule.

Salient among the steps already taken to bring the game back to normal is a definite move among leading eastern colleges and universities to abolish altogether their programs of spring training. This proposal, made by Major Philip B Fleming, retiring graduate manager of athletics at West Point, has been approved wholeheartedly by a score of eastern institutions.

The approval voted while not entirely binding on all the colleges involved was regarded as one of the most important steps yet taken toward the elimination of over-emphasis.

No Spring Practice

Army will not indulge in spring practice in 1931, for the first time in years, and the probability that the cadet policy will be followed in most, if not all of the following associated colleges: Navy, Harvard, Yale, Princeton Brown, Dartmouth, Pittsburgh, Penn State, Pennsylvania, Columbia, New York University, Lafayette, West Virginia, Johns Hopkins, Swarthmore and Syracuse.

The American Football Coaches' association, after a some-what stormy session, adopted resolutions presented by W. W. Roper, retired Princeton coach, and putting the body on record as opposed to "compulsory spring practice," or that start of "organized fall practice" prior to Sept. 15.

Similar recommendations, earlier in yesterday's session as proposed by Hugo Bezdek of Penn State, were tabled because they were linked with more sweeping reforms connected with the college athletic structure as a whole.

ORGANIZES TEAM

Another basketball team has been organized in Marion. The Phalanx Fraternity has formed a cage organization centered around Paris Romine, former Pleasant Township High school center. Howard Baily, Delmar Kolleda, Thomas Chapman, Paul Ebert and Ralph Shults will play. The team would like to book games in this vicinity. Charles Elicker is manager of the quintet and can be gotten in touch with at the Y. M. C. A.
